

Thanks to a routine cargo vessel check, the Indonesian police were able to prevent a smuggling attempt. They found about 150 exotic birds stuffed into plastic drain pipes that were sealed at each end by a wire. The animals were meant to be transported to the US, where they were to be sold as pets. Officials assume that the operation was planned and executed by a wildlife trafficking ring. This delivery would have been worth approximately $250,000. Nearly one week after discovering the illegally captured birds, the police arrested four men who purportedly attempted to commit the smuggling. The suspects face up to five years in prison and a fine of up to $8000 if found guilty. The case rests on an anonymous tip, which provides a very weak case for the suspects' guilt. Moreover, all four suspects appear to have plausible alibis. Thus, it seems very unlikely that they were involved.

The Indonesian police were able to stop a smuggling attempt because they found exotic birds stuffed in a plastic drain pipe with both ends of the pipe closed. They think this was the result of a trafficking business. A week later the police arrested four suspects, who would have to serve 4-5 years in prison with a $8000 fine if found guilty. However, the case rests on an anonymous tip; therefore it is highly unlikely for any of them to be concluded as guilty.

Indonesian police found 150 wildlife were found squeezed in plastic tubes in the middle of being smuggled to the U.S. Altogether they are valued at 250,000 USD. Officials suspect a wildlife trafficking ring was involved. Four suspects were arrested, but their solid alibis cast doubt on whether they are guilty.

Indonesian police were able to stop a smuggling attempt when they stopped a truck and found about 150 exotic birds being hidden in tubes to sell as pets. About a week later 4 men were arrested for their involvement in the exotic animal trafficking ring.

Police found birds stuffed in drain pipes and due to an anonymous tip, they arrested 4 people on suspicion of trafficking. There is $4500 involved, however due to an anonymous tip and lack of evidence, they may not be convicted.

Halfway to the US, Indonesian police discovered 150 wildlife packed into plastic tubes that was estimated to be valued at 250,000 USD. They suspected a wildlife trafficking ring and subsequently arrested four individuals, however, their reliable alibis cast doubt.

Indonesian police were able to stop a smuggling attempt when they stopped a truck containing 150 exotic birds that were hidden in tubes to sell as pets. About a week later 4 men were arrested for their involvement in the exotic animal smuggling ring.

Some birds were found stuffed in a drain and police have arrested four suspects. Damages are $4500 but don't have enough to indict.

Halfway into the US, Indonesian police found 150 wildlife stuffed into an estimate 250000 USD worth of containers. It was suspected to be a trafficking ring. 4 people were arrested but they may not be the culprits due to reliable alibis.

Indonesian police stopped a smuggling of 150 exotic birds by pulling over the car with the animals that were going to be sold as pets. A week later, 4 men were arrested in connection to this operation.

Some birds were found stuffed in a drain and police brought in for suspects. They report costs up to $4500 dollars but there is no evidence.

Halfway into the US, Indonesian police found 150 wildlife animals stuffed inside a container that holds a lot of US dollars.. It was suspected to be a trafficking ring. The people accused may not be convicted due to their alibis checking out.

Indonesian police pulled over someone with 150 exotic animals that were going to be sold as pets. A week later, police had arrested 4 people who were involved in the plan.

A nest of birds were found in a drain and police brought in for suspects. Costs were thousands of dollars

Indonesian police were able to find 150 wild life animals in a container that was halfway through it's journey to the US. They suspect this animal trafficking was done by a trafficking ring. The people accused may not face any legal action with the help of their alibis.

Indonesian police arrested a person who had 150 exotic animals and planned to sell them as pets. Later on, 4 more people were arrested who helped out the original person.