

On August 30 2018, 30,000 internet users in Spain received an email with the subject line 'Immediate response required - copyright infringement'. In these emails, the recipients were accused of illegally distributing pornographic content and were instructed to pay $11,500 by the end of September to avoid a lawsuit. Searching for the email address online leads to an official law firm website located in Barcelona. Shortly after the emails were sent out, the law firm disowned them, calling them a hoax. So far, police officials estimate that approximately 5% of the recipients have paid the money. This sums to more than $17 million that have been paid to the scammers. Now, nearly 4 weeks later, the police have tracked down the internet cafe from which the emails were sent. After observing the cafe's camera footage, the police arrested a man and a woman (both 52) who were allegedly responsible for the scam. If found guilty, they face up to 9 years in prison. Moreover, news outlets recently acquired access to the camera footage and found that the video material is of very high quality and therefore undoubtedly reliable.

On August 30, 2018, emails were sent to people in Spain titled "Immediate response - copyright infringement". The email requested that the individuals pay $11,500 to clear their name of illegal possession of pornography. The email seemed to have been sent out from a legitimate law firm in Barcelona. However, The law firm has publicly stated that these emails are indeed a hoax. Nearly 5% of individuals who received the email sent in the money, totaling $17 million. Nearly 4 weeks later, police pinpointed the cafe that the emails were sent from. Soon after, through using security footage of the cafe, the individuals who sent the emails were found. Particularly, they were a man and woman (a couple). They face charges and consequences of up to 9 years in prison.

30,000 internet users in Spain received a scam email warning charges for distributing pornographic content if they didn't send $11,500 within a month. Already $17 mil have been collected from 5% of the recipients. The email address was linked to a law firm in Barcelona, which denied that they sent the email. The scammers (both 52)) were caught on video footage at an internet cafe.

There was a scam in Spain that sold over a million of dollars from its users. They asked for payment too avoid being sued, when you clicked the link it took you to a legit law firm. About 5% of the people paid.

A couple in Spain arrested for sending out hoax emails from a law firm to people, accusing them of the illegal possession of pornography. 5% paid, totaling 17 million dollars.

30,000 internet users in Spain were sent a scam email threatening the distribution of pornographic content if they did not send $11,500 within a month. Seventeen million dollars have already been collected from 5% of the email's recipients. The perpetrators (both 52) were caught on video footage at an internet café.

Scammer in Spain managed to scam millions of dollars out of people. This was in the form of a sign up button that 5% of users clicked on.

A couple in Spain was arrested for sending out hoax emails from a law firm to people. They were accused of being in possession of illegal pornography and gaining an illegal profit.

In Spain, 30 million people have been send emails threatening distribution of pornographic content if they did not pay $11,000. These emails were send from a location with footage. The senders have already collected 17 million dollars from 5% of the recipients.

Scammer in Spain managed to scam millions of dollars out of people. This was in the form of a sign up button that 5% of users clicked on.

A couple in Spain were arrested for sending illegal emails from a law firm. They were found guilty.

In Spain, 30 million people were sent malicious emails by a hacker group. The hackers threatened to fill the receivers computers with pornography if a ransom of $11,000 was not paid. The hackers have already received 17 million dollars, from just 5% of the victims.

A scammer in Spain managed to scam millions of dollars out of people. The scammer used a sign up button to get 5% out of the users.

In Spain, 30 million people received emails from hackers who threatened to flood their computers with pornography unless a sum of $11,000 was paid. The hackers have earned a lot of money already despite only 5% of people sending money.

A scammer in Spain scammed millions of people. The scammer used a sign-up button which scammed 5% of the people.