

On January 15, 2018, a woman (66 years old) without a ticket and passport slipped through airport security and took a flight from Chicago to London. The woman entered Chicago O'Hare International Airport on January 14. First, she hid her face with her hair and passed two Transportation Security Administration officers who were controlling other passenger's boarding passes. After she was screened, she wanted to board a flight to Connecticut but failed. When the woman tried to sneak past the gate agent, she was stopped and directed to sit down. She stayed overnight at the airport and rode a shuttle bus to the international gate the next day, even though a passport and plane ticket are required to board the shuttle. She then entered a plane to Heathrow Airport (London), where she was detained by British customs officials. She arrived back in the United States on January 18. The woman is charged with theft and misdemeanor for trespassing.

On January 15, 2018, a 66 year old woman successfully snuck onto a flight to London at Chicago O'Hare international. She first hid her face with her hair and got past two TSA agents who were controlling boarding passes. She tried to board a flight to Connecticut, but was stopped and told to sit down, and she ended up staying in the airport overnight. The next day, the woman went to the international terminal and managed to get on a shuttle for a flight to London, without a passport or boarding pass. She managed to get on the flight, and was then detained when she got to London, and sent back to the United States.

A late age woman was charged with theft and misdemeanor for boarding a plane that happened to be traveling internationally. The plane she boarded went from Chicago International airport to an airport located in London. The late age woman initially tried to board a plane that was traveling to Connecticut but failed. The following day, she was able to sneak past security and ultimately she was able to board the flight to London. After arriving in London, she was caught by British officials and was sent back to the United States to receive her charge.

January 15, 2008. a grown 66 years old woman tried to get through airport security and board a flight without paying. she has been charged with theft and a misdemeanor charge for trespassing. she had been stopped by officials and told to wait, stayed in the airport overnight and rode a shuttle bus which apparently you need a ticket for too.

On Jan 15, 2018 a 66 year old woman managed to board a flight to London out of Chicago's O'Hare airport without a passport or boarding pass. She made it to London where she was caught and returned to the US. She first tried to board a domestic flight but was stopped.

An Elderly female was caught by British officials for being a stow away on an flight from the United States. She had been charged with a misdemeanour for this offense. this elderly lady apparently was able to get through U.S. Security and board the flight.

A 66 year old woman was charged with theft and misdemeanor trespassing after trying to board a flight. She was caught by authorities, who discovered she also did not pay for a bus ticket to get there.