

Since mid-April 2018, a region in Bavaria, Germany, has faced a series of fires set by one or more vandals that ignited trash cans, a car, and even an entire town house. At its peak, 8 different fires were started in a single night. Fortunately, nobody was hurt, but the material damages are estimated at around $450,000. The police could not make significant advances in finding the perpetrator until they publicly offered a reward of $6000 for each helpful tip. A crumpled-up black shirt found at one of the crime scenes and bearing a unique design may have been the critical clue. About a week ago, the police arrested a 37 year old suspect on charges of second-degree arson. According to recent reports, experts believe that the existing evidence leaves no doubt about his guilt.

In mid April, 2018, Bavaria, Germany suffered arson attempts with damages of $450,000. No clues were sent in until they offered a reward of $6000. A black tshirt with a unique pattern may have been a critical clue, and a 37 year old man is now being charged with arson. Detectives believe him to be guilty.

In mid April, 2018, Bavaria, Germany suffered arson attempts with $450,000 of damage. No clues were offered until a $6000 reward was posted. A black t-shirt with a unique pattern may have been an important clue and now a 37 year old man is being held as a suspect. Police believe they will find him guilty.

After a series of arson crimes in Bavaria, Germany during 2018, police posted a $6,000 reward for the suspect's capture, which resulted in a successful arrest of a man who fits the description of provided clues. Police believe he is guilty.

A man was accused of arson and fined and he was likely actually the person who committed the crime.

Since mid-April of 2018, a vandal pyromaniac has been loose in German region of Bavaria. These fires igniting cars, houses, and more have amounted to at least $450,000 in damages. Initially, there were no leads on finding this criminal. However, after offered $6000 for any pieces of evidences relating to the case, a crumpled black T-shirt was found at one of the scenes of the crime bearing a unique insignia. Using this lead, the police were able to identify a suspect, compiling enough evidence to convict him of the crimes without any reasonable doubt.

Beginning this year, there was a vandal pyromaniac wreaking havoc around the German region of Bavaria. They caused $450,000 worth of damage to houses and cars. There were no leads in the investigation until the police offered a $6,000 reward for any evidence. When that happened, a black t-shirt with an insignia was found at one of the crime scenes. This piece of evidence was enough to convict the criminal without any reasonable doubt.

At the beginning of this year, a pyromaniac was causing destruction in Bavaria, causing $45,000 worth of damage to cars and houses. It wasn't until police offered a $6,000 reward that a tip turned up. A black shirt with an insignia on it led police to discover the perpetrator of the events.

At the beginning of this year, a pyromaniac was wreaking havoc on Bavaria, causing up to $45,000 in damages. It wasn't until police offered a $6,000 reward for information that the suspect was discovered; an insignia on a black shirt led the police to the suspected perpetrator.

A pyromanic caused $45000 dollars in damages before the police caught him by offering a $6000 reward. The crucial clue was an logo on a black shirt.

Police arrested a person for setting multiple fires in Bavaria and causing thousands of dollars in damages.

The police in Bavaria arrested a person who caused several fires and caused severe losses in money.