

On January 15, 2018, a woman (66 years old) without a ticket and passport slipped through airport security and took a flight from Chicago to London. The woman entered Chicago O'Hare International Airport on January 14. First, she hid her face with her hair and passed two Transportation Security Administration officers who were controlling other passenger's boarding passes. After she was screened, she wanted to board a flight to Connecticut but failed. When the woman tried to sneak past the gate agent, she was stopped and directed to sit down. She stayed overnight at the airport and rode a shuttle bus to the international gate the next day, even though a passport and plane ticket are required to board the shuttle. She then entered a plane to Heathrow Airport (London), where she was detained by British customs officials. She arrived back in the United States on January 18. The woman is charged with theft and misdemeanor for trespassing.

A woman 66 who was wanted for theft made it through Chicago airport and then on to Connecticut. Then she went to Heathrow in London where she was caught and sent back.

A 66 year old woman without a ticket or a passport snuck onto a flight from Chicago to London. She wasn't detained until she reached London and tried to take another flight. She is charged with theft and trespassing.

In January 2018, a 66 year old woman managed to slip through airport security and boarded a flight from Chicago to London. She had entered O'Hare airport the previous day and obscured her face using her hair, allowing her to bypass TSA officers who were controlling other passengers. She then passed screening and attempted to board a flight destined for Connecticut, but failed. The woman stayed overnight at the airport and then took a shuttle to the international gate the next day, where she took the flight to London. She was stopped by British customs officials and sent back to the U.S. by January 18. She has been charged with theft and trespassing.

A woman wanted for theft made it through Chicago, and then Connecticut. But she was caught upon arrival at Heathrow airport and sent back.

A woman who was 66 years old snuck onto a plane going from Chicago to London. She didn't have a ticket or passport or any other of the required forms. She didn't get detained until after she tried to board another plane. She is going to be charged with trespassing.

A woman who was wanted for theft made it through Chicago, and then Connecticut. She was caught, however, upon arriving to the Heathrow airport.