

Thanks to a routine cargo vessel check, the Indonesian police were able to prevent a smuggling attempt. They found about 150 exotic birds stuffed into plastic drain pipes that were sealed at each end by a wire. The animals were meant to be transported to the US, where they were to be sold as pets. Officials assume that the operation was planned and executed by a wildlife trafficking ring. This delivery would have been worth approximately $250,000. Nearly one week after discovering the illegally captured birds, the police arrested four men who purportedly attempted to commit the smuggling. The suspects face up to five years in prison and a fine of up to $8000 if found guilty. The case rests on several eyewitness reports, which provide a very strong case for the suspects' guilt. Moreover, the suspects' testimonies have been found to contain inconsistencies. Thus, it seems very likely that they were involved.

Police were able to discover a group of exotic birds that were being illegally transported, most likely to be sold as exotic pets. After investigation, the police were able to arrest the ring carrying out the crime. Because of eyewitness testimonial and the fact that the suspects' testimonies have inconsistencies, it is very likely the suspects are indeed guilty.

Thanks to a routine cargo check, the Indonesian police were able to prevent a smuggling attempt. They found about 150 exotic birds stored in plastic drain pipes on a cargo ship. They suspect that the birds were intended to be sold in the US as pets, and are valued at ~$10,000 dollars. Four men have been arrested, and face up to eight years in prison. So far, the case has rested primarily on eye-witness testimonies, which have been inconsistent.

A shipment of illegal birds was found. A week later, they found the smugglers who did it.

Police were able to discover a flock of exotic birds that were being transported illegally. After investigation the police were able to identify the ring that was responsible for the crime. With the help of eyewitness accounts and inconsistencies in the ring members' testimonies, it is likely that the ring member will be found guilty.

The police found that a truck was smuggling animals that were intended to be sold in the US as pets. The birds were estimated to be worth around $10000. Four people were arrested can be sentenced up to 8 years in prison.

Police were able to find a flock of exotic birds being transported illegally. The police have found that the ring and its members are likely suspects. After several eye-witness accounts and inconsistencies within the testimonies of ring members, it is very likely that the ring leader will be found guilty.

Four people were arrested for smuggling a truck full of birds, intended to be sold as pets for $10000 in the US. They face up to 8 years in prison.

Police found a flock of exotic birds being transported illegally. Although the police suspects a specific criminal ring of committing the crime, there are serious inconsistencies in the stories of eye witnesses and ring members - so much so that the ring leader will most likely not be caught.

There were four perpetrators arrested for illegally smuggling a truck full of birds to be sold in the US as pets. The birds were meant to be sold for $10,000 each. The perpetrators each face up to 8 years in prison.

After a police seizure of exotic birds being sold by an illegal trading ring, the police attempted to open a case against the ring. However, due to the inconsistencies of the evidence presented by eyewitnesses and ring members, the likelihood of the ringleader being caught is low.

There were a group of perpetrators illegally arrested for smuggling birds worth $10,000. Each perpetrator faces up to ten years in prison.